Anti Apartheid Campaign 1965

"Anti-South Africa Group Suddenly Becomes Menacing" said the South African Sunday Chronicle on January 24, 1965. The Anti-Apartheid Movement is making progress! This year will see a further expansion in our activity to secure :

On Political Prisoners

An improvement in conditions for all political prisoners.

On Arms

The achievement of a complete arms embargo which will include :

- (a) the supply of spare parts
- (b) the export of machines and materials useful to the South African arms industry
- (c) the provision of both training facilities and military co-operation

– the Anti-Apartheid Movement will exhort other governments to implement a complete arms embargo against South Africa.

On Sanctions

British support for the United Nations in the imposition of collective international economic sanctions against South Africa.

On South West Africa

Freedom from apartheid rule.

On Political Refugees

A guarantee of security for all South African political refugees who seek asylum and protection on British Territory.

On Culture and Sport

A boycott of all apartheid institutions by British artists and sportsmen. The Anti-Apartheid Movement will urge new United Nations initiatives in South Africa.

Membership

Diallo Telli, then permanent representative of Guinea to the UN and chairman of the UN Special Committee on Apartheid, said on April 17, 1964 :

"The Anti-Apartheid Movement is in fact one of the most active and effective factors in the general international struggle against the dangerous and criminal racial policy which the South African Government is pursuing... it is clear that the Anti-Apartheid Movement has a decisive role to play in the search for a peaceful means to bring the South African Government to renounce its racial policy."

You hate racialism? What can you do?
