in southern africa 4,000,000 whites ruthlessly repress and exploit 30,000,000 africans these minority regimes have maintained their position through legislation which allows no right of protest and which has been enforced by police brutality authorised by the state the violence of these laws and their enforcement has resulted in appalling suffering - and now the africans have launched armed resistance they are waging guerrilla warfare british involvement in this conflict area grows each year. through trade, investment, travel, sport and other links racialism in southern africa is maintained this is a challenge to all concerned with the liberation of southern africa

WHAT CAN WE DO ?

HOW CAN WE HELP?

In 1955 delegates from branches of African Indian, Coloured and white organisations gathered in the Congress of the People at Kliptown, Johannesburg, to adopt the Freedom Charter - blueprint for a free South Africa

Each year the Anti-Apartheid Movement commemorates South Africa Freedom Day. By marking this day we express our solidarity with the freedom struggle in Southern Africa. More than any other nation Britain is involved in that struggle, at present on the wrong side. We need to discuss this involvement, how it affects us, how to change it.
