REMEMBER SHARPEVILLE

On the 21st March 1960, South African police opened fire on an unarmed crowd of people protesting against the hated pass laws. 69 people were killed, 178 injured.

Each year, on the anniversary of that day, we remember the ultimate sacrifice made by the Sharpeville 69, and each year we become more determined to end the evil of apartheid.

WE REMEMBER

And we remember the thousands of others who have given their lives on the battlefield of liberation – in Soweto, Crossfields, Guguletu, Langa, Alexandra… We also remember the thousands who have died in the struggle since the fraudulent tricameral elections in August 1984.

We remember the men, women and children locked up in prison, held in detention without trial, and those who have simply disappeared.
