

Carr's industrial bill is oppressive-but you should read Vorster's.

A black South African cannot strike at all. For any reason whatsoever.

He cannot earn much above a tenth of what white workers earn.

He cannot use his skills or work where he chooses.

These are just a few of the apartheid laws. And by sending arms and capital to South Africa, Britain helps to support such laws.

It's high time British collaboration with racist South Africa was stopped. To which end, this country's organised labour movement can be a powerful and persuasive force.

The first step now is to stop the supply of arms. Can we count on your support?

Contact
Anti-Apartheid
Movement (Trade Union Group) 89 Charlotte
Street, London, W.1. (Tel.: 01-580 5311).